When I was a child you used to give me a few cents and sometimes a dollar, I used to have a lot of stuff using those pennies. Although now I am also earning but receiving a gift of money from you is still meaningful to me. Thanks a lot, dad for the unnamed money order to me. I am sure it is you because you are the best of all dads.

I'll be coming home soon. Love you. Take care. Also, how is a mom? Write to me,

Your son.

Dear Iris Watson,

I received a gift along with a note. I was elated after receiving it. We both missed you at our wedding, hope you could have made it attend. But we understand the circumstances. This is a beautiful gift dear. I am going to put it in our new home. We both love it.

We hope things are fine there. Let's meet soon. Take care,

Love & regards,
Cecilia Chapman

Such letter can be written in those situations when people attended your wedding and came with gifts. Obviously you cannot write to everybody but if there's somebody you feel that a letter with thank you would be required, write and send with some changes in language (depending upon situation).

There's not much difference between when you write a thank you email for gift or you write a thank you letter. It's just a difference of mode of sending your letter. So do not worry about it. It's just you can make this email little attractive by changing font size, using format (like bold, italic etc.) Rest will remain the same as letter.

Here's an example/ sample for you:

Thank You Email For Gift

Dear Freza Rony,

I am writing this mail because I want to thank you for sending me a lovely greeting card on my birthday. Sam gave me it when he came to the party. I was so surprised and felt amazed when I received it. I loved the note inside that wrote for me. You are such a lovely supervisor, ma'am. Not everyone is so fortunate as I am.

Thank you for taking out some time for me. I will come and meet you soon.

Hope you are doing great, ma'am. Thank you so much.

Love & respect
Amera Gloved
