Dear Sir,

I know that you would never want me to go wrong in life and that's how you both have raised me. However, recently, you came to know about 1 bad habit in me which is stealing. I know that this is something that you have never taught me and would never want your kid to have this habit in you.

I know that it feels bad that your own kid has stolen from you that too when you have been the most loving parents in this world. I cannot say how bad I am feeling and regret the action that has made me steal from my own parents. Since the day you have come to know about it, I have been in a lot of stress and not been able to look straight in your eyes and meet you face-to-face.

You have always provided me with everything and have done your best to give me everything that I could ever ask. But, even after all your support, love and care, I still went ahead and stole your ----- (mention the thing/money you have stolen). So, I would like to apologize for this deed that I have done to you and it has made me feel bad and regret the action that I have taken. I would like to apologize to you for the misdeed and for the mistake that I have made in life. I will never repeat this again in life and will be completely honest with you throughout life.

I hope you will forgive me this time and will give me this one last chance.

Yours lovingly,
(Your Signature)
Eleanor Jennings
