Dear Mickey Billiard,

Hi! Hope you are fine.

Our marriage was a dream come true for both of us, but sadly we could not continue it forever.

Like every couple, we had our ups and downs in our little paradise, but slowly and gradually these problems became huge and started troubling both of us. We could not find a way to amicably solve these problems and get together. The situation got worse when ----- (mention what happened) and you decided to leave. I have realized that letting you go that day was the biggest mistake of my life and I should have stopped you. If I would have stopped you, then we might have been together today and could also save our marriage.

So, I would like to apologize to you for everything that I have done, every time I have hurt you and the dreams that we could not fulfill together. I hope that you would consider my apology and will forgive me. I will be waiting for your response to this letter.

My best wishes are always with you.

Yours lovingly ex-husband,
